

KENOSHA NEWS

MONDAY, JULY 25, 2016

★★★$1.25

'Dueling for Community Involvement' event to highlight business-school partnerships

BY JAMES LAWSON
jlawson@kenoshanews.com

"Dueling for Community Involvement" is the theme for Harborfest '16, a business/education event set for Thursday at Simmons Field.

Leeward Business Advisors, a business strategy planner and information technology operational support company, is hosting the event to introduce businesses the ways they can give real-world experiences to middle school students.

The event, 3:30 to 8 p.m., will feature awards, food, beverages and entertainment by Howl at the Moon, a dueling pianos group.

Working in partnerships with Kenosha School of Technology Enhanced Curriculum, Junior Achievement and community organizations, Leeward has launched initiatives working with students ranging from elementary to high schools.

Harborfest '16 will highlight these partnerships and their results, organizers said.

The company has received two awards, one from the Lake County Chamber of Commerce for being a distinguished business community member and another from KTEC for its donation of time and materials to support the after-school coding program.

There will be a raffle for a 3-D printer, with proceeds going to KTEC programs.